VOTING ON CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT

ARKANSAS AND CALIFORNIA RATIFY AND NINE REJECT

Thirty-Six States Must Vote for the Measure to Secure Its Adoption, While Thirteen Negative Votes Will Defeat It—Agriculture is Against It.

Information from Kansas City, Missouri, is to the effect that the agricultural southwest is against the proposed child labor amendment to the constitution largely because such a provision would interfere, it is believed, with the southwest's leading industry, agriculture.

The sentiment among the representatives of the voters is that the federal government should "mind its own business" in affairs concerning whom the citizens of the various sovereign states shall employ in the fields or factories, a survey of the situation shows.

Arkansas is the only one of the southwestern states that has ratified the amendment proposal and already there are reports current that a move would be made at the present session of the legislature to repeal the ratification, done at a special session last June.

The Kansas legislature defeated the proposal overwhelmingly, only to find that it may have to vote all over again because of technical errors in the title of the bill. However, sentiment is such that another vote undoubtedly will result the same way.

Oklahoma and Wyoming have turned down the proposal and indications are that the same fate is in store for the amendment in Missouri, Texas and Colorado.

Defeat of the proposal in Oklahoma was caused by a general misunderstanding of the amendment as regards its jurisdiction as well as an apparent distrust of congress, according to Ira M. Finley, president of the Oklahoma federation of labor.

"Had the measure been more specific in what limitations would be made on child labor, it would have received a majority vote," said Finley.

This same feeling is apparent in Texas where an unofficial canvas of Lone Star legislators showed strong sentiment against the amendment because of the effect it would have on labor in cotton fields and also that since other states have rejected it, there must be something objectionable to it.

Texas, however, has a bill before its legislature now regulating child labor in industries where there is an element of danger.

Opponents of the measure in Kansas argued that such a law would tend to make children lazy; that a farmer should have the right to permit his minor children to work in the fields.

The majority of Missouri legislators are against the measure, according to H. C. Day, representative from Webster county and chairman of the committee on constitutional amendments.

"The people of my county are against it because it would strike a severe blow at the mining industry in that section," Day said. "I believe the federal government has gone far enough in centralizing power at Washington and it is time to call a halt."

Colorado has state laws protecting children in industry and feels that the federal measure is unnecessary. Its passage is extremely unlikely, according to its supporters.

"Advocates of states' rights and beet sugar interests are giving the most opposition," said Judge Ben B. Lindsey, noted juvenile court authority who is leading the fight for adoption. Farmers' organizations in Colorado "do not want federal inspection here interfering with the work of our children."

This sentiment is prevalent throughout the southwest, those interested in the amendment say, and it is too strong to overcome, for the present, at least.

With the action of Kansas and Oklahoma Thursday afternoon, but four more states are required to reject it in order to keep the amendment from becoming a part of the supreme law of the land, unless, of course, some of the states that refused to ratify later change their action.

Three-fourths of the states, or 36, are required to ratify a constitutional amendment before it becomes effective and 13 states can reject it. So far but two states, Arkansas and California, have ratified. In addition, the lower house of the Arizona legislature ratified it, but the senate has not acted.

Joseph Jacob Touve of Centerville, Ill., is believed to be the oldest active barber in the United States. Now in his eighty-seventh year, he has worked continuously at his trade in this country for sixty-four years, while for three years previously he was employed in a shop in Bavaria, where he was born. Touve came to America in 1856, opening his present shop in 1863. One of his regular patrons was Marvin Huggitt, then a telegraph operator for the Illinois Central at Centerville and now chairman of the board of directors of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad. Another one of his patrons was Gen. Phil Sheridan.

FARM INCOME IN PICKAWAY OF LAST YEAR

Agriculture Seems to be Headed Toward Prosperity Say Students.

The average Pickaway county farmer's income in 1924 was $1680 according to the Blue Valley Creamery institute. This estimate, based on the most accurate available data, covers the yield, acreage and animal production on farms in this section of Ohio.

This is the best indication yet that the state's agriculture is again headed toward prosperity, says the Institute. 1919, one of the two peak years in the purchasing power of the American farmer, witnessed an average income of $1,819 per farm in the state. The average income per Ohio farm for the past season's production will run up approximately to $1,400.

An outstanding fact brought out in the studies of last year's farm records is the steady rise in the per acre value of the leading U. S. crops. The value per acre for the country as a whole in 1921 was only $14.45. This jumped to $21.52 in 1923 and in 1924 it amounted to practically $24 per acre. Improved farming methods advocated by the state college of agriculture was a big factor in making this gain and in the more efficient production per cow, sow and hen animal unit lies further increases in the net profits of Ohio farms, concluded the Institute.

OHIO WOMEN ARE FACTORS IN FARM LIFE

Dairying and Hog Raising Are Branches in Which They Specialize.

Ohio boasts 11,000 lady farmers, according to data analyzed by the Blue Valley Creamery Institute. Of this number over 9,000 operate farms, 8,500 their own, 35 as managers and not quite 600 as tenants, the data disclosed.

Dairying, poultry and hog raising are some of the branches of agriculture in which the women farmers of the state specialize, the analysis revealed. The land under cultivation by the feminine agriculturists is close to 600,000 acres of which 450,000 acres are improved. The value of these farms is 61 million dollars. The figures further revealed that women cultivate 3.5 per cent of all farms in the state and 2.6 per cent of the total acreage, the value being 2.3 per cent of the whole. The average value of the land and buildings on farms operated by women was found to be in excess of $6,800.

Commenting on the large percentage of women who go in for dairying and poultry raising, the Institute sees a peculiar adaptation of these occupations to the feminine nature. From early times, it says, the average farm woman has had to care for the milk and act as dairy maid, too. And milking cows and selling butterfat with its requirements of close attention to details seems to be a type of work that woman naturally takes to. The same appears to hold true for poultry raising. For pin money for the thousand and one items needed in the home, the sale of eggs and poultry and cream has ever been known as a sure means. Many a woman in need of more money has almost instinctively turned to milking cows and keeping hens.

END OF WORLD AWAITED BY ADVENTISTS

Date is February 6—Pearly Are Not Open to Slaves of Fashion.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 27—(United Press)—"The pearly gates of heaven are not open to the gaudy slaves of fashion," say Seven Day Adventists here who are waiting for the end of the world to come.

According to the prophesy of Mrs. Ruth Rowen, of Los Angeles, California, who said she had a vision giving her the information, February 6, will see the beginning of the end.

The members of the mission here are prepared. Many of them have sold all their material possessions and are waiting eternally in plain black dresses and suits. The women have discarded powder, rouge, silk stockings and lace. Rev. Carl F. Woertz, pastor of the mission here, has sold all his belongings and has left for the "hill in California" where Mrs. E. H. Frey, Los Angeles, who is here preparing members for the end, so the chosen few will gather and be saved. "The 144,000 selected from the United States by the Lord will be guided to California by a light," said Mrs. Frey. She advises everyone to start for the hill immediately after they see the light.

The Scrap Book
Writer Tells Joke on George Bernard Shaw
An old story about George Bernard Shaw is not amiss just now when that famous Irishman is once again in the spotlight, thanks to his "Joan of Arc." According to Lincoln Springfield in his book, "Some Piquant People," G. B. S. was returning one night in his critic days from a ballet, deep in admiration of the pirouetting of one of the dancers.
Nearing home, and still pondering the dancing, Shaw found the square in which he lived empty, so he began to try to spin, as the dancer had done, but unsuccessfully, as he fell each time. A policeman, who had been watching, picked him up from his fourteenth fall and asked: "What are you a-doing? I been watching you for the last five minutes."
Shaw explained. The constable thought for a moment and then said: "Would you mind holding my helmet while I have a try? It don't look so hard." He had a shot and fell, so Shaw and the constable took off their coats and went at it again.
Then the inspector arrived on the scene. After explanations he, too, joined in, and later a postman and a milk boy had a try.
Finally, the milk boy fell and broke his leg, and the others, including Shaw, had to stop and take him to a hospital.

Explaining Firm Belief of Cigarette Smokers
Why is it unlucky to light three cigarettes from the same match? A student of superstition has been trying to find out the origin of this most popular of recent beliefs in omens.
One explanation says that it started in the Boer war. There has seldom been a war in which so many men were killed or wounded by sharpshooters. It did not take long to observe that at night, if a match were kept alight long enough to ignite three cigarettes, it gave a distant Boer marksman just time enough to get a good aim. One of the three men usually fell, so it was not surprising that the habit soon became looked upon as unlucky.
Another explanation, however, says that the Boer war story was made up long afterward to explain the belief. This critic is more prosaic and he insists that the popular opinion was not heard until the World war and that it was started by the manufacturers of a well-known brand of matches who thought up the cleverest selling campaign for their product ever devised.—Detroit News.

Tungsten and Platinum
A simple test for distinguishing tungsten from platinum is to heat the specimen to red heat or above. Platinum will remain unaltered. Tungsten will be coated with a yellow oxide or may even burn completely to the yellow oxide. If it is essential that the specimen shall not be destroyed in the test, a small amount of filings from the specimen may be heated with aqua regia in a glass or porcelain vessel. Aqua regia is made up by mixing three parts of strong hydrochloric acid with one part of strong nitric acid. In this test the tungsten filings will be slowly converted to a yellow powder. Platinum will be slowly dissolved to an orange red solution which if evaporated with a small amount of sal ammoniac will yield fine yellow to red crystals. If the platinum is alloyed with iridium, as is frequently the case in material used for jewelry or for electrical work, the attack by aqua regia will be very slow.

Explaining Frost
The weather bureau says that frost is the deposit of feather ice crystals formed on exposed surfaces when the temperature of the dew point is below freezing and the temperature of the dew point is reached. In that sense it is frozen vapor. Frozen dew consists of small pieces of clear ice, usually globular in form, found on vegetation and other exposed surfaces under certain atmospheric conditions. It is formed only when the temperature of the dew point is above freezing in the early part of the night so that liquid dew forms when that temperature is reached and later the temperature falls below the freezing point so that the dew is frozen.

The operator, after entering debits and credits, presses a key marked "Total," when the balance appears. If the customer's account is overdrawn, the machine refuses to act.

Live Stock Consume Much Raw Material
Convert Many Farm Crops Into Valuable Products.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
In a talk delivered during the International Live Stock exposition, held at Chicago, Dr. John R. Mohler, chief of the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, told briefly of the importance of live stock in our national economy. "One may ask," said Doctor Mohler, "why it is necessary or even desirable to have a large animal population in a country, such as this with its millions of automobiles and trucks and its vast acres for producing cereal grains. The answer is simple. Our domestic animals, developed through long years of evolution, are marvelously efficient in converting vast quantities of grasses, forage, plants and other products which are of slight direct value to mankind into valuable animal products. These products include meats, milk, butter, cheese, leather, furs, wool, mohair and almost countless by-products ranging from violin strings to fertilizer."
"The United States contains the largest corn-producing region in the world, yet the human population uses only about one-tenth of that crop directly as food. The public appetite much prefers to use the corn crop in the form of juicy steaks and savory hams. Through the stockman's skill our domestic animals are becoming gradually more efficient in converting coarse feed into refined and concentrated products. As alchemists for the refinement of base materials, cattle, swine and sheep—to say nothing of goats—have an enviable record."

Appreciate Color, Line, Accessories
Distinguishable Appearance of Women Due to Their Keen Judgment.

If women have not learned perfection in the art of dress they are not far from it. One glance at a group of smart women, says a correspondent in the Kansas City Star, will quickly establish the fact that their distinguished appearance is due in a great measure to a keen appreciation of color, to a knowledge of line, and to a sense of fitness in the choice of accessories.
There is clean-cut definiteness about the silhouette of the season that is most intriguing and the effect of svelte slimmness adds an intangible air of distinction.
In the modern woman's scheme of things sartorial there is no such thing as buying a hat or dress or coat without considering its relation to every part of the costume. The result is a harmoniousness that is infinitely chic.
In plaid designers have found a material peculiarly adapted to the needs of youth and it is not surprising to discover that practically every couturiere of note has included in her collection of youthful models a number developed in plaided fabrics.
Tunics of plaid taffeta are an integral part of the ensemble costumes designed for schoolgirls and their sisters of subdebutante age. Dance frocks are of plaid chiffon in lovely pastel tones.
A street dress achieved smartness with fine tailoring and trim of rich plaid. An attached scarf was wrapped around the throat to give the effect of the high neckline.

One of the prettiest dresses is a dark blue flannel which has a three-quarter length tunic bound with red and blue plaid, and worn over a skirt of plaid. The fashion of lining the coat with plaid, or of using one of the new wools which are plain on one side and plaid on the other for the coat is a distinctive note of the new modes and one that has achieved a decided vogue.

A row of tiny red enameled buttons extends from neck to hem on a dress of black bengaline, two large buttons of repousse silver fasten a coat frock of navy kasha, while numberless buttons covered with green crepe de chine trim a gown. Fashioned of black bengaline, pipings of green correspond with the buttons.

Ensemble Costume Has Made Place for Itself

In its various phases the ensemble costume has made a definite place for itself. Not only is it attractive and smart, but it is eminently practical. Every woman realizes that perfect harmony, even to the most insignificant detail, is the secret of distinction in dress, and in the ensemble costume she has found the solution of the problem of being well dressed when one can afford only few clothes.

It is not always the amount one spends on one's clothes but the thought expended in their selection that makes for success, and frequently the woman with the fewest costumes is infinitely better dressed than one who buys at random without any regard to harmony or appropriateness.

Not the least interesting interpretation of the ensemble takes the form of an evening frock with its wrap to match. It may be of crepe de chine, of velvet, of satin, or of chiffon, but in such case the coat or cape is of the same material. Very often the wrap is faced with a different material and may be worn with the reverse side on the outside.

One instance of this is a costume consisting of a frock of metal brocade in deep, rich colorings and a coat of ermine lined with the brocade. It was fashioned so that it could be turned inside out.

Another model of flame-colored velvet has a cape lined with beige ermine. This also may be worn with the fur on the outside.

Use Tractor to Shell Corn and Grind Feed

Make your tractor shell your corn and grind your feed for you this winter. Don't let it stand idle in the shed eating up interest money on your investment. It is much easier and warmer to grind your own feed at home than it is to harness up a team of horses and drive to a feed mill in cold weather.

"If you have several tons of fertilizer or feed to haul, hitch your tractor to two or three wagons and make one trip take the place of several trips to town," says F. W. Duffee, of the agricultural engineering department, Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

"There are only a few jobs for a tractor during the winter months, but if they are done with the tractor the interest on your money invested will more than be returned.

"A tractor has the advantage over horses that when it is standing idle it does not use feed."

FARM NOTES

Moldy corn is always dangerous feed and the flock should not have access to it.

The droppings boards, perches and nests should be treated for mites. The pullets also should be examined for lice.

The Purdue laying ration with corn meal has given excellent general satisfaction. A good grade of flour middlings will give much better results than standard middlings.

The white of eggs is chiefly water combined with protein. The yolk has some protein and much fat. To supply the protein in egg production it is necessary to feed liberal rations of protein the same as is needed in feeding rows for milk.

Volcanic Deposits.

There have been reported the results of physical, chemical and biological studies of the ash deposits in the Caribbean country of St. Vincent laid down at the time of the eruptions of the Soufriere in 1902 and 1903. The deposits, which range in depth from 14 to 18 inches, consist of coarse, sandy types. They show small contents of organic carbon and nitrogen, are extremely deficient in calcium carbonate and contain moderate amounts of available phosphoric acid and potash. They give evidence of a moderate activity of putrefactive bacteria. Nitrogen-fixing organisms of the Azotobacter type are present. The soil possesses appreciable nitrogen-fixing and ammonifying power, but no nitrifying power. Considerable progress has been made in the conversion of these sterile ash deposits into fertile soil.—Washington Star.

KEEPING WELL

SLEEPING SICKNESS
AND AFTEREFFECTS
DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

THE newspapers report a case of "sleeping sickness" in which the victim has been "asleep" for a week or more. The popular belief is that this is a definite disease. It is not.

There is a tropical disease, common in central Africa, popularly called "sleeping sickness," but this is entirely different from the occasional case which occurs in this country. The cases seen here are really a form of meningitis following influenza, in which the most striking symptom is unconsciousness. This condition generally starts with a chill followed by fever, headache and sometimes vomiting. Drowsiness soon occurs, becoming deeper and deeper. During the earlier stages the patient can be aroused, but later on the sleep becomes so profound that the patient cannot be awakened. Delirium and convulsions may occur. The unconsciousness may become deeper and the patient may die without waking, or it may gradually disappear, the patient recovering, but generally with considerable paralysis or serious mental impairment.

Doctor Duncan of London has recently published a report on the results of this condition in 136 cases. Thirty-five died, sixteen recovered but could not be traced after leaving the hospital. In the remaining eighty-three some kind of mental impairment was found in seventy-nine. This varied from defective memory to insanity. Extreme drowsiness was frequent, while others suffered from insomnia. In some cases the disposition was entirely changed. Paralysis of some muscles or spasmodic twitching was also found in some cases. Some patients were depressed and melancholy. Some form of mental derangement was found in nineteen out of twenty patients who recovered.

Children under ten years of age showed a greater tendency to mental impairment than older persons. If the patient lives a year after the acute attack the chances of complete recovery are good.

"Sleeping sickness" is simply an infection of the brain by influenza germs. Every epidemic of influenza produces a certain number of cases. Avoid influenza and you'll never have "sleeping sickness."

SCENE OF BATTLE
IS NOW A MUSEUMThe Alamo in Charge of Texas Women.

San Antonio, Texas.—The Alamo—the shrine of Texas liberty—is the best-loved historical building in Texas. Wrapped in its gray cloak, it stands here amid the hustle and bustle of modern city life. The word "Alamo" is a Spanish name for the cottonwood tree, a species of poplar whose wood is noted for beauty of texture. These trees grow along the creeks and rivers of Texas. The Alamo was erected in a grove of cottonwoods.

The building now known as the Alamo was the church in the Mission San Antonio de Valero. It stands on the east side of Alamo plaza in the center of San Antonio, with its carved stone face toward the setting sun. Its front bears the date of 1757, probably the date of its dedication.

The foundation stone was laid on May 8, 1744. It is understood that the mission was founded on the Rio Grande river in 1703, was moved twice, then finally brought to San Antonio, by order of the viceroy of New Spain, the Marquis of Valero, in 1718, a number of years before the revolution.

The church was built of stone, and there are evidences that it once had twin towers, though at the time it was besieged by Gen. Santa Anna they had disappeared and the dome had partly fallen. At the time the Alamo was rehabilitated, a new roof was put on; but it still retains the old dirt floor.

Famous Battle.

During Texas' war with Mexico in 1836, the Alamo, containing 181 men under the command of Col. W. B. Travis, and including Bowie, Crockett and Bonham, was besieged by Santa Anna with a large force. Col. Travis sent messengers with a call for help which failed to come. He then made his famous speech to his men and asked those who agreed to remain with him and defend the fort to the last to step over a line which he drew on the floor with the point of his sword.

Every one, with the exception of a man named Ross, who made his escape, stepped over the line to Travis. Bowie had to be lifted across the line. On March 6, Santa Anna stormed the fort. The brave defenders were overwhelmed.

After the siege the Alamo was in ruins until 1849, when it was partly restored by Maj. Babbitt, acting quartermaster of the Eighth Military department, for offices and a storehouse. Texas having been admitted into the Union. It was thus used until the Civil war when the Confederate forces took it over. After the war, the United States government again used it until a quartermaster's depot was built on Government hill.

The state afterward purchased the Alamo for $20,000. The Daughters of the Texas Republic have charge of the relics and mementos within its walls. They have put up bronze tablets containing the names of the 181 men who made the heroic stand.

The Daughters of the Republic bought the ground, now inclosed by the vine-covered arched walls on the right of the Alamo and once a part of the mission, for $75,000 and later sold it to the state for $65,000. They made a walled garden of this spot with wide iron gates opening toward the Alamo.

Many semitropical plants, vines and flowers grow there. Six pecan trees, now bearing, were sent as a gift. A peach tree stands within the iron gates. The ivy that runs over the stone archways was brought from Mount Vernon. A granite shaft—a gift from Japan to commemorate a similar battle fought at Marichino in their own country—is within the garden.

Mystery City Found
in Wilds of Sumatra

The Hague, Holland.—A romantic story of the discovery of an ancient unknown and uninhabited fortress city comes from Sumatra, one of the largest islands of the Dutch East Indian archipelago.

According to the Sumatra Post, J. L. Hienstra, a forestry official, journeying in the upper Langkat region, reached a point beyond which the native guides were reluctant to proceed. They talked of a nearby silent city which they had once seen from afar, but never dared approach, as they imagined it to be haunted by evil spirits.

Hienstra, however, pushed on with a small party and eventually reached a sheer wall of rock of great height and some miles long, with natural bastions and inaccessible except at three points, by one of which the explorers entered.

They came upon a veritable maze of intercommunicating alleys, passages, chambers and cave dwellings. In the center of this fortress town was found a large open space with one huge solitary tree. There were inscriptions in strange characters, and remains of what seemed ancient tombs. Silence brooded over the place, and although traces of wild mountain goats were observed, not a human soul was seen.

Who the ancient rock-dwellers were and why they abandoned their impregnable stronghold remains a mystery.

Solitude.

Though the most beautiful creature were awaiting for me at the end of a journey or a walk, though the carpet were of silk, the curtains of morning clouds, the chairs and sofa stuffed with cygnets down . . . the window opening on Winander me, I should not feel—or rather my happiness would not be so fine as my solitude is sublime. Then, instead of what I have described, there is a sublimity to welcome me home. The roaring of the wind is my wife and the stars through the window frame are my children. I feel more and more every day, as my imagination strengthens, that I do not live in this world alone but in a thousand worlds.—Keats.

HAPPENINGS
IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From the Wires by Correspondents of United States
Press Association.

(United Press)
Columbus, O., Jan. 26—Attorney General Crabbe today refused to take any action on the request of the law and order committee of the Cincinnati Federation of Churches that he enjoin
the opening of the new race track at Coney Island.

Cleveland, Jan. 27—Lorain is polluting Cleveland's water supply, City Manager Hopkins. Coke plants and similar factories are pouring great quantities of phenol into the lake, according to a report submitted to Hopkins by J. W. Ellms, city water expert. Hopkins said legislation would be demanded of the general assembly prohibiting the alleged pollution.

Cleveland, Jan. 26—The state will try Joseph Kirby before the federal government, Common Pleas Judge Dan Cull ruled.

The trial of the state charge of issuing a false financial statement in connection with his position as president of the Cleveland Discount Co., will begin February 1. Later the federal government will bring Kirby to trial on charge of using the mails to defraud. Kirby's attorneys wanted the state trial postponed and the federal trial started first but the judge overruled their motion to this effect.

From a mash consisting of fermented

Pee Sing, Chinese laundryman, distilled a strange liquor.

Police brought a quart of the finish-

task of passing on the liquor's alcoholic content.

Bottled the liquor has the general

C. A. C. DANCE

Capital City Blue Blowers
Last Appearance.

Saturday evening the Athletic club
had another of their highly appreciated
hops. The Capital City Blue Blowers was the orchestra. These boys are well liked by the dance lovers of this section and they demonstrated the fact by their hearty applause and insistence on the encores. This is one of the best organizations of music makers that the club has ever had.

This orchestra consists of Claude
Milbourne, piano; Russel Goty, banjo;
Walter Farst, sax; Kenneth Barley,
sax; Roy Parks, trumpet; Emilow Weston, trumpet; Pinky Copp, trombone; Wilbur Decker, drums. All are experienced players and they certainly do make a good aggregation.

Next Saturday will be the last appearance of this orchestra in Circleville. Be sure and be on hand and dance them all and give them a good send off. You will like their music, as others have. Dancing will be from 8 to 11:40.

Questions of State

The proprietor of a village store was sitting with the loafers who had formed a circle around the stove. His sole assistant was a youngster who had lately drifted in from parts unknown.

A woman entered and asked for a pound of cheese. She would not allow the assistant to wait on her, but insisted on having the proprietor.

The lad must have been trained in some city office, for to this demand
he made firm reply:

"Can't disturb him now. He's in conference." — Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Put in Date Book

The Andromedes appear to come from the direction of Andromeda in the evening hours, about November 23 or 24, says Nature Magazine. Then there are the Taurids, several different times during the month from different points in Taurus. These also will appear in the evening hours from the direction of Taurus, nearly due east.

Then She Gave Him Up

"Why did you break off your engagement?" "Oh, my dear, Jack became simply impossible. He criticized the way I dressed and objected to my friends, and always wanted me at his beck and call. Then on top of all that he suddenly went off and married another girl, so I made up my mind to have nothing more to do with him."

FOOTPRINTING LAST WORD IN ACCURACY

Proves Infallible Means of Identification.

New York.—"Footprinting is my fad," said Mary E. Hamilton, director of the New York policewomen's bureau. "But it is a fad that will last as long as I do. I hope it will last as long as the world." The head of the policewomen of New York made this remark to Ada Patterson, who tells the story in the Police Magazine.
Mrs. Hamilton has furnished an apartment next to her own home for desperate, unmarried mothers who might otherwise become human waste. Frantic, betrayed girls with the dawn of motherhood in them may ring her doorbell at any hour and find sympathy and a room in the little waiting apartment that is a twin of Mrs. Hamilton's home. Twin in shining neatness and care and livableness. We were talking of these distraught, despairing visitors, of the pallid faces
and the midnight ring at the door, when Mrs. Hamilton mentioned foot-printing.

"It is the last word in accuracy in the detection of criminals," she said.
"Commissioner Richard E. Enright, who is a progressive, forward-looking official, deeply interested in fingerprinting not only for detection, but for personal protection, approves foot-
printing."

Origin of Footprinting.

"It came into the department in a strange way. A beggar was brought in. His hands were gone. His arms were mere stumps. How should we secure means of identification in his case? There were no birthmarks.
Comparatively few persons have them.
The only thing to do is to take his footprints," said some one. The beggar's foot was smeared with the ink used in fingerprinting. He was told to step upon a sheet of white paper.
There was a complete print. By that simple act the perfection of methods of identification had been reached.
A criminal may twist his fingers and prevent a perfect print. But the sole of the foot is uncompromising. The footprint is a masterpiece.

"Footprinting has the widest application to the problems of life and the police; for hands may be maimed and manipulated, but the soles do not change. So long as the feet remain, the footprint is an infallible means of identification."

"It solves the problem of the unfortunate stricken suddenly by amnesia or aphasia. If every person were footprinted at birth and records made of the footprints the footprints
would answer the sad old question,
'Who am I?'

Possibilities.

"Footprinting would prevent the hospital blunders of mixed-up and missing babies.

"It would make complete and accurate beyond doubt the identification of the dead.

"Potters' field would dwindle to a mere record of poverty rather than mystery. The appalling record of the burial of 250,000 unknown dead a year in New York city would be raised.

"It would have caused Charlie Ross
to be found—and Lillian McKenzie."

"There would be no more lost children?" I asked.

"If lost they would be quickly found," returned Mrs. Hamilton. "And there would be no possibility of mistaken identities. No two footprints are alike and they never change.
What mother could say with certainty, 'If my child were lost today I would recognize him in 12 years?'
The woman who is not sure whether a child is her own or another's is the saddest sight in a world crowded with sad spectacles. Yet it is a common
one. Nothing in nature changes so wholly as does a babe that is growing up. A mother's heart may tell her the truth, but she has no sure means of proving it."

Chloroform Fatal

Decorah, Iowa.—Mrs. Jesse Smith,
Milwaukee, a sufferer from insomnia, is dead here from an overdose of chloroform which she used to induce sleep. Telling her sister, Mrs. Charles Overacker, that she intended to take a nap, Mrs. Smith poured some chloroform into a towel which she pressed to her nostrils. She died ten minutes later.

Ancient English Law

Deodand is a Latin term meaning "to be given to God." It was found in English law which had come down from the Middle Ages, and according to its provision anything which caused the death of a human being became forfeit
to the sovereign or lord of the manor, and was sold for the benefit of the poor. The forfeiture was abolished by an act passed by the British parliament in 1846.

Nevada Mountain Sheep

A herd of 70 mountain sheep was discovered recently by F. M. Rapp, a mining engineer, while prospecting in the Silver Peak range in Nevada.
While it was known that mountain sheep inhabited this territory it was not believed they were so numerous.
Contrary to popular belief, Rapp said they take to sheer cliffs only when danger threatens. At other times they stay on the gentler slopes of the higher mountains. Plans are being made to bring an expert hunter
to Nevada to exterminate the cougar,
the greatest enemy of the mountain sheep.

Valuable Material

Fluorspar is a very important product, since it is used in the manufacture of glass and of enameled ware, in the electrolytic refining of antimony and lead, in the production of aluminum, in the manufacture of hydrofluoric acid and in the iron and steel industries.

Look for the Best

Every man has his flaws and weaknesses; nay, the greatest blemishes are often found in the most shining characters; but what an absurd thing
it is to pass over all the valuable parts of a man and fix our attention on his infirmities.—Exchange.

Many Birds Talk

Many birds besides parrots will learn to talk. The best of these are the yellow-wattled black mynas of India, says Nature Magazine. Well-trained birds equal the most accomplished parrots, but, like them, must be obtained when
very young.

Harsh Punishments

Sometimes in the ancient days of Milan a fine was imposed for larceny;
at other times the foot of the criminal was amputated. In cases of forgery the right hand was amputated, as a rule. Burial alive was the fate met by some forgers.

AMUSEMENTS

Every now and then comes along a motion picture that contains so much of ability and beauty and lavish expenditure that every one that pretends to know anything at all about the films must see it as a matter of duty, if nothing else. Even more seldom comes a film combining all these qualities, which possesses also the rare attributes of beauty and charm and romantic flavor that make it the pleasurable necessity of every one to see it.
Such a picture is Cosmopolitan's
"Janice Meredith," starring Marion Davies, which came to the Met theater yesterday for a three days' run.

It is one of those things that every one must see for the sheer delight of it, and that every one also must see to know anything at all about achievement in motion picture making. Miss Davies outshines even herself in this film.

"Janice Meredith" was adapted from Paul Leicester Ford's novel by Lillie Hayward. It was directed by E. Mason Hopper. The settings were by Joseph Urban. It is a Metro-Goldwyn release.

HARTMAN THEATER

After a three months' stay in New York City, on Broadway, Sissle & Blake, the deservedly famous Dixie entertainers assisted by their "Chocolate Dandies" company, have turned their backs on the "big town" for a tour of all of the principal American cities. They are due at the Hartman theater Columbus, for three days beginning Monday, January 26, with a matinee on Wednesday.

A fortune has been spent upon the two acts and twelve scenes of this stage presentation. The sponsor of the latest efforts of these co-author-stars, Sissle & Blake is Bert C. Whitney, who has given to the American public many genuine successes in the musical comedy line, including "The Chocolate Soldier," Ed. Wynn in "The Perfect Fool" and many others. Neither money nor pains have been spared in making "The Chocolate Dandies" the most pretentious and colorful musical comedy production seen in years.

A large cast of Dixie funsters includes, besides the stars, Noble Sissle
and Eubie Blake, Lew Patton, Lottie
Gee, Josephine Baker, Valada Snow,
Elizabeth Welsh, Jimmy Ferguson,
Amanda Randolph, Addison Carey, J.
Mardo Brown, W. A. Hann, William
Grundy, Lee, Randolph, Inez Clough,
Percy Colston, George Elmore, W. H.
Berry, Mildred Smallwood, Lloyd Keyes, the Bamville Silver Cornet band, the Sissle and Blake company orchestra and a chorus of beautiful brunettes, which makes by far the largest and peppiest musical comedy organization now before the American public. It's a wow!

Box office indications point to capacity attendance and we venture to predict a performance well deserving the patronage of those who love
the type of entertainment represented
by musical revue.

A Man From Reno

By BAYARD SHARPE

(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

JOHN KIMBERLY sagged in his spacious office chair, his big hands gripping the polished edge of the mahogany desk. He glared at the grinning office boy.

"Who did he say?"

"Jest told me tuh tell yuh he was a man from Reno!"

Kimberly opened the top drawer of his desk—well, they'd found him, after ten years. He pulled at his collar—it seemed as though he could feel the noose tightening around his pudgy neck. No—he mopped the leathery corrugations of his brow; the walls of the room seemed to close in about him, smothering him—Nevada didn't hang her murderers now; she choked them to death with gas.

For ten years, Kimberly had pictured this very moment; at first it had come with a fear for every man in the uniform of the law. Later it had come with a dread of civilians, plain clothes men. Finally both fears had worn away—he had merely dreaded an inevitable something. To forget, he had plunged into business; success had come, but he had never forgotten—and now, the dreaded moment was here.

He rose to his feet and strode to the open window, fighting—fighting with every inch of him for the craftiness that had kept him safe throughout the dreaded years. But in spite of his efforts, he could not concentrate. His nostrils quivered; his lips curled in a snarl—well, they wouldn't get him without a fight; nor would they take him back alive—not on account of a drunken brawl. He groaned; perhaps he had been a trifle hasty—the other fellow had been too overloaded with liquor to be responsible. . . . God! If he could just live that hour over.

Yet, it wasn't an hour; it had happened in a moment. They had been drinking, Jim Breeden, Golden, Carns, and himself. Carns had passed the insult. He had resented; they had come to blows; then guns, and the next thing he had remembered, he was gazing into the ashen green, dead face of Carns. Somehow he had gotten away—of the trip he could remember little; except that Jim Breeden had stuck with him as far as the railroad station in Berdo.

Kimberly paced before the open window, gripping his huge fists.

The office boy coughed.

Startled, Kimberly halted, swinging his big body toward the desk. He groped in the open drawer, blindly; his lips snarled, and his beetle brows met. His hand closed over the butt of a blue steel forty-five, and he faced the frosted glass door.

With the gun thrust from his hip, Kimberly grasped the door-knob, then—he wondered. His big body hinged like a huge jackknife; he bent forward and peered through the keyhole. Then Kimberly's powerful right arm grew limp, abruptly, the gun barrel sagged toward the floor; his big body straightened, and he laughed nervously—Jimmy Breeden. All his fears had been for nothing.

There was a wan smile on his face as he returned to the desk and sat down. He flung the gun into the open drawer and mopped the mist of salty sweat from his eyes. . . . So Jim Breeden had looked him up—well, he'd show him the time of his life—hadn't old Jim staked him out of the country, the night it had happened—stuck with him through the broiling sands of Death Valley, and given him his last dollar when he boarded the eastbound train, in Berdo. Why, Jimmy Breeden would go through—an' high water for him—he knew it.

"Send the gentleman in!"

With a nervous cackle the office boy opened the frosted door and went out. A moment later the man from Reno stepped in the room.

They shook hands, both men seemingly affected with the meeting.

"Well, how's Old Jim?"

"Better'n that, Kim; how's y'r self—seem tuh be settin' on top o' the world!"

It was a proud moment for Kimberly, and he smiled. "Yep—kinda hit the old pay dirt this time, Jim!" He drew up a chair for Breeden and sat down.

But Breeden remained standing. Smiling, he thrust his gnarled hand deep into his inside coat pocket, and tossed a document on the desk.

With the movement Kimberly's eyes caught the gleam of a polished shield on Breeden's faded vest, and fear gripped his heart. . . . Yes, he could see it now—Breeden had become an officer—sheriff or something—and because of the reward, had sold him out. He lunged for the open drawer, screaming:

"You—Extradition!"

Breeden beat him to it, pinning his arms.

"Keep y'r shirt on," he bellowed, "Golden Jus' kicked th' bucket an' signed a confession to th' killin'—Shot Carns in the back. You an' me was too drunk tuh know any different!"

"Jim?" Kimberly wilted.

"Yep!" Breeden grinned. "You can come back tuh Reno now—an' leave any time yuh wanna!"

But Kimberly didn't hear—he was huddled over the desk, sobbing.

PORTABLE AUTO HIGHWAY IN CALIFORNIA

This portable auto highway is under construction across the famous sand hills of Imperial county in southern California. The roadway, 18 feet wide, is made of redwood timbers bolted together. After a severe sand storm a truck equipped with a crane can lift up a section of the roadway, shake it clear of sand and lower it into place again.

GETTING STARTED IN COLD WEATHER

What to Do When Gas Does Not Vaporize Readily; Choker Trouble.

By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.

Of course the principal difficulty in starting a car when it is cold is that the gasoline does not vaporize readily and combine with air into a combustible mixture. Understanding this, do not wear out the storage battery with the starter or your patience with the crank handle with a fruitless endeavor to start something. Use your head instead of your arm. The car will start easier, for neither headstrong nor armstrong starters are worth while.

Open Choking Device.

As soon as the engine starts it is very important that the choking device be opened partially, depending upon the temperature until the engine heats up, and then fully closed. Otherwise the excess of gasoline will cause the engine to run sluggishly. Indeed, it may load up the cylinders with such a rich mixture that the engine may stop again. This in turn will make it harder to start the engine than before. Do not open the choker again if the engine stops from this cause. Get as much air in as possible while you crank the engine and thus approximate a correct mixture.

If the use of the choker device fails to start the engine the only thing left to do is to apply heat to the intake manifold. You may pour a little hot water over the manifold. The intake will get warm enough this way in a little while. But a surer way is to wrap a cloth about the manifold and empty the teakettle slowly upon it. Extreme care must be taken not to get any water on the high-tension ignition terminals or in the float chamber of the carburetor. Water will not pass through the spray nozzle and a tiny globule will stick there and hold back the gasoline.

To Warm Carburetor.

Practically all modern carburetors have some sort of warming device to heat the gasoline and air entering the mixing chamber. Some get air from a stove or hot-air furnace attached to the exhaust pipe and some depend on hot water from the cooling system. Neither of these will get into action, however, until after the engine has been running some time and will not help the cold-morning troubles of the owner. If there is a hot water jacket on the carburetor, persons who drain the cooling system on cold nights will aid starting materially if they fill the radiator with hot water in the morning just before it is time to start the engine. This warms the entire engine, so that condensation is not likely to occur.

Lean Gas, Pop, Pop, and Your Motor Goes Dead

On a bright snappy morning you step on the starter and the motor starts, runs for a second, and stops. You try it again, and it does better, but when you feed a little more gas, "pop, pop," and the motor dies.

That is caused by too lean a mixture. But you ask yourself why—what does it "pop?"

First you must form a mental picture of the four cycles or strokes of a piston, namely, the intake, compression, power, and exhaust strokes; also picture the valves, on the intake stroke, as the piston goes down. The intake valve opens, allowing the suction of the piston to draw gas from the carburetor into the cylinder; then the intake valve closes, the exhaust valve also remains closed, and the piston starts up on compression stroke. When it reaches the top dead center or 10 degrees past, the spark occurs, and the compressed gas explodes and drives the piston down on the power stroke. The exhaust valve then opens as the piston comes up, and forces the burned gases out through the exhaust valve, manifold, and out the muffler.

When the mixture is too lean there still remains in the cylinder certain quantities of burning gases which cannot be forced out by the piston on exhaust stroke. Under this condition, as the intake opens and the piston starts down on the next intake stroke, the burning gases, which still remain in the cylinder, ignite the new intake charge, and the flash is followed out the intake valve to the intake manifold, then to the carburetor, hence the "pop."

Workbench Made Movable Is Handy in Repair Shop

In an automobile repair shop in western Maryland the writer observed a small repair table, made from an old steel oil drum and mounted on casters, that it could be moved about. A wooden top was bolted on the drum, and on this top a small vise and hand grinder were mounted. A semi-circular opening was cut in the side of the drum so that oil cans, greasing equipment, waste and various tools for tire and other repair work could be stored when not in use. Casters were riveted to the side near the bottom as indicated in the detail. Obviously the use of this table saved many steps to and from the workbench and thus eliminated waste of time. It was possible even to put an engine on this sturdy table and move it to another section of the shop.—G. A. Lue's Washington, D. C., in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Proper Care of Tires Makes Them Last Longer

Tire manufacturers have compiled some very interesting figures regarding tires, which have become unseizable prematurely. One manufacturer states the loss of tires running before they become worn out through carelessness on the part of owners amounts to $100,000,000 annually which loss could almost be entirely eliminated. Another manufacturer says that one out of every three tires used is on a wheel out of alignment or one that is wobbly, causing the tread to wear down quickly, due to unnatural causes. Still another states that of tires which do not give complete satisfaction 90 per cent of the trouble is due to the fact that the owners do not carry sufficient air pressure and do not have small cuts repaired on time.

Sunlight, heat, rain and cold are elements destructive to the life of rubber—not so much while in service, but that extra tire hanging on the rack will suffer if not properly covered. The rubber will crack.

Good Information About Various Engine Knocks

Are you familiar with the different knocks an engine makes so that you can tell one from the other? Engine knocks fall naturally into four classes—spark, overheating, carbon and loose or worn parts.

Spark knock is due to spark being advanced too far, particularly when going up a hill. The engine slows down and the explosion comes before dead center, causing a knock. If spark is retarded the knock disappears.

Overheating causes a knock by firing the gas before the piston reaches upper dead center on the compression stroke. The exploding gas expanding meets the piston going up and makes a knock. Overheating may be noted by steam at radiator.

Carbon knock is caused by red hot carbon in cylinder head setting fire to the mixture when the gas has been compressed to a certain point. Remove a spark plug and look in cylinders for presence of carbon.

Danger to Ignition

It sometimes happens that after you have switched off the engine with the idea of stopping for a passenger to alight the latter will change her mind and tell you to go on a little farther. Carelessly you switch on the ignition again and the engine starts off again before it has come to a dead stop. The danger lies in the fact that one of the cylinders may fire at the wrong time, reverse the engine and send a hazardous backfire through the line.

Pitying a Queen
The recent celebration of Queen Wilhelmina's jubilee revives many stories of her youth in Florence, where she lived for a while with her mother. It is related that one day they were going along the Lung Arno, when they were accosted by a beggar.

The queen regent wanted to push on, fearing that her daughter might catch some fearful disease, but the little queen having a will of her own, insisted on stopping. She questioned the man in broken Italian, believing herself quite unknown and on proceeding gave him half a franc.

The beggar looked from the silver in his hand to her, and then back again, and at last said, with an air of impertinence: "So your subjects keep you as short as that! Poor queen!"—London Times.

EDUCATION WEEK

"THERE is no record in history of a military organization manifesting such an interest in the themes of peace and there has never before been such an expression on the part of a military organization of a consciousness of the importance of universal education as a guarantee of the safety and perpetuity of our democracy, as has been displayed by the American Legion," was the declaration of Vernon M. Riegel, director of education, state of Ohio, in congratulating the Legion as having been responsible for the inauguration and promotion of American Education week. The Legion in co-operation with national agencies introduced American Education week in 1921. The week has been observed annually since then by Presidential proclamation.

MANY POSTS AFTER MEMBERSHIP HONORS

American Legion posts throughout the nation have been extremely active for some weeks in signing up members in advance for 1925, according to Frank E. Samuel, national director of organization and membership. Posts have been tumbling over themselves to claim honors for early membership returns. Never before has there been such a contest and such a scramble for recognition in this work, it is declared.

First dues for 1925 were received by national headquarters from Joe Williams post at Farmer City, Ill., which had signed up 14 men for 1925 by the first of October. The first post in the country to sign up more members for 1925 than it had had in 1924 and to send the dues to national headquarters was Victor Cornell post, Pelican Rapids, Minn. Fowler post, Fowler, Ind., the home post of Thomas S. McConnell, department commander for 1925, was a close second. Other posts which were among the first to go over the top in this hot contest were Pulaski post, Detroit, Mich., and Roy Cole post, Grand Lodge, Mich.

The Florida and Connecticut departments are staging a contest to see which will have the larger percentage of 1924 membership signed up for 1925 by the time the bells ring out on New Year's eve. Florida suggests that the losing department buy the delegates and alternates of the winning outfit a big dinner at the Omaha convention of the Legion next year.

Florida appears to be looking for something. That department won only three of the big Legion prizes offered at the 1924 convention. They carried home the trophies for the largest percentage of membership signed up by March 1 over the preceding year's membership, for the largest percentage signed up for the year over the preceding year's total and that for the largest number of man miles traveled to the national convention at St. Paul. Florida surely baske in the limelight.

Colorado, Utah and Wyoming are mixing things in a little friendly rivalry. Western style. The winner is to be the department which signs up for 1925 the largest percentage of its 1924 membership and will receive a stand of department colors presented by the losers.

Organized German Labor and Escort Companies

Do you know who directed the destiny of the German prisoners of war taken by American troops during the late fuss abroad? His name and title's Lieut. Col. William Brisswold Gough, at present deputy county surveyor of San Diego county and a member of the San Diego post of the American Legion. Colonel Gough is a veteran of the Mexican border trouble, enlisting in the army in 1916. When the World war included the United States he was sent to France with the commission of captain. With the Fifteenth Field artillery he was wounded in action and then was placed on the general staff, where he took complete charge of the prisoner-of-war department of the A. E. F., and in that capacity organized the German labor and escort companies.

Fine Clubhouse for Hollywood Legion Men

Hollywood (Cal.) American Legionnaires will have one of the largest and finest clubhouses in the United States, if plans approved by the Hollywood post of the Legion are carried out. The clubhouse will be erected on property already owned by the post and will include swimming pool, a dormitory, gymnasium and other departments usually found in the most exclusive men's clubs. Money will be obtained to finance the building of the club from the weekly boxing bouts held at the Legion stadium, which have proven very popular with the "movie" populace, stars and "extras" alike. Hollywood post recently raised $100,000 to carry on the post's relief work for disabled veterans.

Iowa County Lost Most Men

Madison county, Iowa, according to figures of American Legionnaires of the county, lost more men during the World war than any county in the United States in proportion to population. With a loss of 52 men, Madison county gave more than any county to make the world a safer place to live in.

CARE FOR ORPHANS AND DISABLED MEN

The American Legion will raise a fund of $5,000,000 or more for orphaned children of the World war and indigent and disabled former service men in a nation-wide campaign to be launched soon, it was announced at national headquarters of the Legion recently. President Coolidge, at the request of National Commander James A. Drain of the Legion, accepted the honorary chairmanship of the Legion's national committee to raise the fund.

The endowment fund program was given authorization by the sixth national convention of the Legion at St. Paul, pending approval of the plan by the finance committee, which was given at a meeting of the committee at national headquarters.

The urgent need of raising the fund immediately was pointed out by Mark T. McKee, Detroit, Mich., who is a member of the Legion's child welfare committee. He declared that the existing facilities of the Legion for caring for the orphaned and helpless children of former service men who were killed or died as a result of their war service are overcrowded. At this time the Legion maintains a children's billet at Otter Lake, Mich., and has one under construction at Independence, Kans.

"There are 5,000 children of dead World war veterans who need care right now," Mr. McKee said, "out of a total of 35,000 war waifs. As time goes on there will be more. These are veterans' bureau figures. Just the other day a man left four children at the veterans' bureau, children of a deceased war veteran, with a request that they be cared for. The bureau turned the children over to us. Somehow we will provide for them, yet our present facilities will stand for no expansion."

In referring to the proposed fund, Commander Drain declared: "The Legion's endowment fund campaign will be a success; we will raise more than the set amount and the campaign will have a greatly beneficial effect upon the morale of the Legion and increase our membership for the coming year to a million members. We must look close to home and see the great underlying misery caused by the great conflict. We must help the disabled man. He is our first obligation and he needs us now. The American Legion must keep faith with its fallen comrades by seeing that the helpless children are not deprived of the opportunities that are rightfully theirs, because their fathers were killed fighting for their country. 'Bind up the wounds of the disabled and care for the widows and orphans' must be our slogan."

The Legion will petition congress to make a technical change in the recently passed adjusted compensation act to the effect that former service persons may allot their compensation to patriotic organizations chartered by congress, the money to be used for child welfare and disabled veteran care. The Legion would use such a fund toward their endowment program if congress sanctions the proposal, Legion officials declared.

Trophies Not Removed From School Grounds

When the local school board proposed that captured war trophies presented to the city of Montclair, N. J., in 1920 by the government be removed from the school grounds as "unit objects for the children to see," American Legionnaires voiced objection to the proposal to city commissioners, declaring: "These trophies were presented to Montclair in memory of 69 Montclair men who fell on the battlefields of France; they are a lesson in patriotism to the school children who pass them daily. If these trophies are removed, remove the busts of Washington and Lincoln from the schools and take down the flag that waves above them." The commission ordered the trophies left on the school grounds.

Proper Use and Honor to Flag to Be Urged

Defenders of the flag in '64 and '17 will introduce a bill in the next session of the legislature of Connecticut making compulsory the teaching of the proper use and respect of that flag. It was revealed when representatives from both the American Legion post and the G. A. R. post met and framed a bill to that effect. A resolution concerning the bill was passed at the last state convention of the Legion which extended an invitation to their venerable comrades to include their sentiments in the flag etiquette legislation.

Aiding Foreigners

Aiding foreigners to study for citizenship is one of the activities of the Golden Gate post of the American Legion in San Francisco, Cal. "Our method is simple and direct," said Miss Myrtle R. Saylor, in charge of the activity. "We get a list of prospective citizens from the naturalization bureau, look them up, and send them to the nearest place where English and other naturalization requirements are taught.

The Sports Suit

By WILLIS BRINDLEY

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

FOR ten dollars cash and five dollars a week, payable on pay days, Moe Golden will sell an honest working girl a sports suit that will make her look and feel like Evelyn Vander-gould. Minnie Bowers knew this. Minnie had ten dollars and enough over for incidentals on her vacation at Linger Longer, where she had been invited to be a guest of rich Aunt Harriet.

But Minnie knew also that she could not possibly squeeze an extra five dollars a week from her pay envelope to complete payment for the suit.

It was Saturday morning; she would be off at one, with time to shop and pack in the afternoon and catch the night boat for Linger Longer. If she only had that sports suit.

The telephone at her ear jangled. Long distance from Berrydale for Miss Bowers.

"Yes, Mr. Simonson, two dozen cellular window bolts No. 363, four dozen light galvanized strap hinges No. 647, by auto freight today, sure. Business must be good with you, Mr. Simonson. Thank you very much. Today, sure."

She wrote the order, and ran out to the shipping clerk with it.

"Today, sure, Mike, for Simonson at Berrydale, and if you don't make that auto freight I'll never speak to you again."

"All right, Minnie, just for you we'll make it."

She returned to find Adam Goss, her employer, at her desk, with a tremendous list of hardware items, in his own handwriting.

"Today, sure," said Goss. "Copy it and get it in the mail, and don't lose it, and there's a letter goes with it—it's that big job for the Central high school were figuring. I am going for the day."

"Mr. Goss," she said, "I'm leaving this afternoon for my vacation."

"Yes. Well, get that estimate out before you go. You got plenty of time."

But that was not what she had come to talk about.

"Mr. Goss, I think I'm entitled to more money. I want five dollars a week more."

He stared. Such talk!

"It is up to me to decide when a person around here is entitled to more money. Nobody should talk like that unless he is indispensable."

Minnie Bowers returned to her desk, her face aflame. The telephone jangled in her ear. It was the Bon-Ton store at Cedar Rapids, all out of extension window screens No. 843. She wrote the order and made savage threats to Mike of what she would do if he did not ship today, sure.

Then she tackled the estimate. Adam Goss had picked the list himself, with special prices on most items, and she must extend and total it, type the accompanying letter and put it in the mail.

The telephone rang again. It was the five and ten at Gardenville, suffering for fly-swatters and paring-knives. Came one o'clock and the office cleared—of all but Minnie Bowers. At three o'clock she finished the estimate—lunchless, tired, angry. She mailed the thing herself, walked into Goss' office with the carbons and his original, and then—

Then she walked back with the papers to her own desk and buried them in the second drawer.

Minnie Bowers, vacation at Linger Longer over, returned to the wholesale hardware business becomingly tanned and becomingly arrayed in a sports suit that lacked seven payments of being legally her own. And the first thing she did was to look in the second drawer for that estimate.

It was gone.

"Boss wants yuh," said a voice in her ear. She went to him.

"Nice vacation, I hope. That's good."—(My, but wasn't he nice?) "Well, you'll be glad to know we sold that schoolhouse hardware. We found the estimate in your desk all right."

She managed to look up at him, but found no words.

"Well, you done a good job on that estimate, but it ain't that I called you in for. I guess from now on you'll have to lay off estimates and just answer long-distance and take care of country trade. Simonson of Berrydale, he raised h—ll when you weren't here last week and the Bon-Ton store and the Gardenville five and ten, they say only you can handle their orders and get 'em right. Now, I ain't prepared to say that anybody's indispensable around here, but this country trade job is gold! It be worth five dollars a week more to you, beginning this week."

Tuberculosis Conquered?

According to Sir Leonard Rogers, English physician, there will be no more tuberculosis after 25 years. Doctor Rogers' remedy, sodium morrhuate, consists of a sodium salt obtained from the codfish. It was first used in treating leprosy patients in the tropics. Because the bacillus of leprosy and tuberculosis are so similar it was used as a specific for tuberculosis with favorable results. The most significant feature of the new remedy is that, being so cheap, it lies within the reach of every sufferer, says Doctor Rogers.

RIBS BROKEN WHEN AUTO HITS POLE

Truck Driven by Lyman
Evans Skids and Driver
Thrown Out.

Lyman Evans who drives a truck for Dr. Moon, veterinarian at New Holland, met with a bad accident on the Walters hill, Columbus pike Monday evening, when his truck, a Chevrolet, skidded, ran off the road and hit a telephone pole this side of the bridge upsetting and spilling the driver of the truck. When Mr. Evans picked himself up he found that he had sustained several broken ribs and a badly bruised hip. He walked to the nearest farm house and summoned aid. The Albaugh ambulance brought him to this city and took him to Dr. Courtwright's office where he received surgical treatment. He was later removed to the Home and Hospital.

KEEPING WELL

BLACK DEATH IN LOS ANGELES

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

PNEUMONIC plague has appeared in Los Angeles. This is not an epidemic of ordinary pneumonia. It is something far more fatal and infinitely more dangerous. It is the worst form of bubonic plague, the "Black Death," which in 1347 and the years following killed 42,000,000 people in Europe, which in 1665 and 1666 in London killed 10,000 people a week.

Bubonic plague is originally a rat disease. Kitasato, a Japanese bacteriologist, in 1894 discovered the germ, a long oval-shaped bacillus, which lives in the blood of the rat. Fleas bite the rat and then, by biting a human being, infect him. In the ordinary form, the lymphatic glands in the groin, in the arm pits and in the neck swell up and form abscesses. This is the disease which broke out in the Chinese quarter of San Francisco in 1900, and again in 1907. More recently, a few cases appeared in New Orleans and Galveston. These outbreaks were promptly attacked by the local and state health officers, aided by the United States public health service. In each case, the plague was stopped by catching and killing all the rats, by rat-proofing the houses, warehouses and docks and by rigid quarantine.

Pneumonic plague, the worst form of this dread disease, is much more dangerous than the bubonic form. Here the infection centers in the lungs, and infection is caused by coughing as in ordinary pneumonia. This disease is taken by direct contact with the sick person, no rats being necessary to transmit it.

Pneumonic plague is probably the most dangerous disease in the world. In Manchuria in 1910, when over 65,000 people died in a few weeks, not a single person attacked recovered. Death occurred in every case in from 10 hours to four days.

The disease spread along the railroads, crowded with fugitives attempting to escape from the infected regions. A single case often started new epidemics which wiped out whole villages.

In Los Angeles, the 40 cases so far reported were all persons who had come in direct contact with the original patient, a Mexican woman.

It is to be hoped that the combined efforts of the health machinery of Los Angeles, Cal. and the United States may stamp out this disease, for a more dangerous foe to human life does not exist.

Origin of the Waltz

The waltz is of French origin, but was adopted and modified in Germany so that it is usually identified with that country. It became popular on the continent early in the Nineteenth century, and was introduced into England in 1812.
